

Mississauga art gallery to host exhibition of works by actress Jane Seymour

National Post · Saturday, Oct. 23, 2010

Jane Seymour is best known for her roles as a Bond Girl in 1973's Live and Let Die, and the lead in the TV series Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman, but she's also a painter. Art Trax Gallery (arttrax.ca) in Mississauga is showing The Art of Jane Seymour: 2010 Canadian Exhibition, a collection of paintings, watercolours, sculptures and limited-edition giclees until Nov. 19. Ms. Seymour's Joyous Heart is pictured. In addition, Ms. Seymour will make a rare appearance at the gallery on Nov. 4 and Nov. 6. Ms. Seymour is also passionate about fundraising for children in need and has donated her artwork to numerous charities. During her visit, Art Trax Gallery is sponsoring the actress as the special guest of the Darling Home for Kids Gala on Nov. 4 at Liberty Grand (Darling Home is a pediatric hospice in Milton). For info on gala tickets, visit darlinghomeforkids.ca.

---

Get the National Post newspaper delivered to your home